Learning Outcomes: Upon completion of this course, a student will be able to:

- Explain the meanings of whole numbers, integers, fractions, and decimals, as well as representations of those numbers;
- Explain the meanings of operations and the connections between those operations, concepts, and procedures in doing computations (using both standard and nonstandard algorithms), interpreting story problems, and writing story problems;
- Evaluate the efficiency of and use various representations of numbers and operations, as well as their applications to problem solving;
- Employ various modeling strategies to solve problems in real world contexts;
- Recognize some common misconceptions and be able to understand the faulty reasoning behind those misconceptions;
- Explain their reasoning, both verbally and in writing, while solving problems.

Classwork: Class activities are a mix of individual, partner, group and all class participation. Activities with manipulatives and related discussions are difficult to replicate in the case of an absence from class. Deeper learning occurs when students are in attendance to share their explanations and methods of solving problems with each other. Please attend regularly.

Homework: Homework is a mix of online and offline assignments.

Offline assignments may be preparation for the next class, or completion of an activity from a prior class. Not all offline homework will be graded. Assignments are expected to be turned in on time.

Online assignments focus on skills practice. All students are required to activate their MyMath Lab accounts (see attached instructions). Online assignments are assigned weekly and due the following week. All online assignments are graded, thus a student may retry the assignment until 100% is achieved. Students are encouraged to start homework as soon as it opens and seek help when needed through the instructor, other students, or the Math Support Centers on campus.

Due dates for online homework will be posted in MyMath Lab.
