“If there is any kind of magic in this world, it must be in the attempt of understanding someone, sharing something. I know, it’s almost impossible to succeed, but, who cares, really. The answer must be in the attempt.”

+ Celine, Before Sunrise

“We make out of the quarrel with others, rhetoric, but of the quarrel with ourselves, poetry.”

+ William Butler Yeats

“Rhetoric is language at play—language plus. It is what persuades and cajoles, inspires and bamboozles, thrills and misdirects. It causes criminals to be convicted, and then frees those criminals on appeal. It causes governments to rise and fall, best men to be ever after shunned by their friends’ brides, and perfectly sensible adults to march with steady purpose toward machine guns...It is made of ringing truths and vital declarations. It is a way in which our shared assumptions and understandings are applied to new situations, and the language of history is channeled, revitalized, and given fresh power in each successive age.”

+ Sam Leith

Course Description

In Writ 201, we will be examining the ways that traditional rhetorical concepts are still at play in contemporary American culture, and how we use rhetoric every day to define ourselves within that culture. Identity and self-definition are precious and often sensitive concepts for most of us, and in this classroom we will be looking into the linguistic choices we make to define our place in the world – and the ones we make when we want to change our own stories.

Through a combination of classic rhetoric texts, personal & inquisitive essays, interviews, and profiles, we will consider how arguments about identity are constructed, why we make them, and how they can be most effective and powerful. Our work in this class will be discussion-driven and collaborative; you’ll work in small groups, write often, and share your discoveries.

Because writing development is an important process that takes place over time and across different writing situations, all WRIT 201 classes use portfolio evaluation as a primary means of evaluation. By the end of the semester you should be able to accurately and subtly assess a given rhetorical situation and make effective rhetorical choices based your assessment in order to write a graceful, convincing, beautifully written argument.

Our Community

As our class considers the concepts of belonging and identity, we’ll inevitably run up against issues that are hot-button or conflict-laden. It is imperative, then, that you treat your peers with as much respect as you expect from them. I expect this classroom to be a supportive and respectful environment for risk and exploration; ideally, the classroom should be the safest place to flesh out and develop your ideas without fear of being put down or embarrassed.

We will work together as a community to create an environment of mutual grace and respect in this classroom, one that allows each member to share their ideas. This doesn't mean you have to agree with each other's perspectives; in fact, part of our rhetorical study is to develop means of honestly discussing and parsing out differences, and learning to respect and value them.

WRIT 201 Requirements

I encourage you to talk with me at any time to better understand my comments on homework and major assignments, or to discuss your overall progress and success in the class.

Grading

You must earn a C- or better, as well as turn in your portfolio and complete all major essays by their deadlines, in order to receive credit for this course.

- + Participation: 35%
- + Final Portfolio: 65%

Grading Policy

Students enrolled in WRIT 201 are graded by the traditional letter grade A, B, C, D, F or are given NC for no credit. The NC grade does not affect grade point average. It is reserved for students who have worked unusually hard, attended class regularly and completed all assignments, but whose skills are not at a passing level at the end of the semester.

Major Assignments

Expect to write four essays and make major revisions over the course of the semester, in addition to other short writing assignments in and out of class. I will give you a detailed assignment sheet as we begin each of these major assignments.

You will have the chance to develop all of your major projects through a process of inquiry and drafting. You'll compose papers in and out of class, alone and collaboratively. All inquiry projects must be completed for you to pass the course. I will respond to these projects with written comments focused on suggestions for revision, but I will also mark them using a check system to help you know where you stand on a specific project.

Major Inquiry Projects

- + Assignment 1: Rhetorical Analysis (due 9/21)
- + Assignment 2: Response Essay (due 10/12)
- + Assignment 3: Persuasive Researched Essay (due 11/16)
- + Assignment 4: Exit Interview (due 12/12 with Portfolio)
- + Final Portfolio (due 12/12, last day of class)

Evaluating Assignments

You will receive comments from me on short assignments and homework, but no grade on these informal writing submissions. Short assignments play an important part in your overall participation grade.

All major inquiry project drafts will receive comments and an evaluation based this check system:

Check: A project with a check generally meets its rhetorical goals in terms of purpose, genre, and writing situation without need for extensive revision. Written comments will elaborate on strengths, weaknesses, and strategies for focused revision.

Check minus: A project with a check minus meets the basic requirements, but would benefit from significant revision and a stronger understanding of rhetorical decision-making.

Written comments will elaborate on strengths, weaknesses, and strategies for revision.

Unsatisfactory: A project with a U does not meet basic standards, and requires extensive development and attention. An unsatisfactory submission may be incomplete or inappropriate to the assignment. Such a submission may receive a request to rewrite within a week in order to receive teacher comments.

Attendance

If you miss the first two classes, you will need to drop the course on Cyberbear and enroll in another semester. This is university policy and the reasoning behind it is that important groundwork for the semester is put in place in the first few class meetings. Students without that foundational framework are better served by taking the course when they can give it the attention it deserves.

More than two absences from a TR class will compromise your grade. 5 or more absences from a TR class will result in a failing grade. Here's the breakdown.

- 3rd absence: final grade drops one letter grade (for example, A drops to B)
- 4th absence: final grade drops two letter grades (for example, A drops to C)
- 5th absence: final grade is an F

Here's the reasoning behind the attendance policy. Without attending class, you cannot perform your role as a student involved in learning, planning, inventing, drafting; discussing reading and writing; learning and practicing rhetorical moves and concepts; or collaborating with your instructor and classmates. Required University events will be excused if you provide appropriate documentation. Personal situations inevitably arise that make it impossible for you to make it to class. Remember, however, that's why a few absences are allowed; please reserve those for emergencies.

If you must miss class, you are responsible for obtaining any handouts or assignments for that class period. Make sure you talk with me in advance if you are worried about meeting a deadline or missing a class.

Late Work

Your work needs to be typed, printed, and in class with you to be considered on time.

- + Late or handwritten homework does not receive credit
- + Emailed assignments (unless specified) are considered late
- + Late formal essays are unacceptable. They will receive no revision comments from me
- + If you miss class, homework is due the next class period; it will be marked late unless your absence is excused
- + You are always welcome to complete assignments early if you will be missing class

Participation

Participation includes coming to class prepared and on time, taking part in class discussions, asking questions, contributing your knowledge and insights in whatever form is appropriate, and striving to make all your contributions excellent. It also includes doing the required reading and writing for each class. Note: Please come to class on time. Lateness will hurt your grade because it is an unnecessary interruption and because latecomers are likely to miss valuable information. Please see Participation Grade Descriptors for more information.

Academic Conduct & Plagiarism

You must abide by the rules for academic conduct described in the Student Conduct Code. If you have any questions about when and how to avoid academic dishonesty, particularly plagiarism, please review the Conduct Code and talk with your instructor. The Council of Writing Program Administrators describes plagiarism as follows: “plagiarism occurs when a writer deliberately uses someone else’s language, ideas or other original (not common-knowledge) material without acknowledging its source.” Academic honesty is highly valued in the University community and acts of plagiarism will not be tolerated.

If I suspect that something a student has written has been plagiarized, in full or in part, intentionally or unintentionally, I take the following actions:

- + I alert the student to areas of the text that are suspicious
- + The student receives no credit on the paper, pending failure, and it is up to them to prove that they turned in original work
- + Each student is asked to provide me with hard copies of the research they used in writing the paper
- + If the student cannot provide documentation of their research, the student will fail the paper

These measures are also put into action when a paper is poorly cited. When a student then brings their research to me I use the time to talk with them about citation and make sure that they understand how and when to cite in the future.

In the case that the student is unable to provide evidence of their original work, or in the case that I have evidence that the student has intentionally plagiarized their work:

- + The student will automatically fail the given assignment
- + The student may fail the course unless, at my discretion, I offer alternative assignments and/or conditions
- + I may pursue a plagiarism citation unless, at my discretion, I offer alternative assignments and/or conditions
- + The student may receive alternate assignments, etc. to avoid failure. In this instance, all conditions must be met. I need to see evidence of excellent work and effort, and work must be completed on time.
- + All other previously established conditions in the class (i.e. attendance, participation, homework grades, etc.) still stand and can still cause a student to fail the course
- + In the case of blatant or egregious offenses, I will not negotiate against course failure and will pursue a University Citation of Plagiarism from your DSS Coordinator.

Participation in University Assessment

This course requires an electronic submission of an assignment stripped of your personal information to be used for educational research and assessment of the writing program. Your papers will be stored in a database. This assessment in no way affects either your grade or your progression at the university.

Portfolio Grade Descriptors for WRIT 201

A

Superior portfolios will demonstrate initiative and rhetorical sophistication that go beyond the requirements. A portfolio at this level is composed of well-edited texts representing different writing situations and genres that consistently show a clear, connected sense of audience, purpose and development. The writer is able to analyze his or her own writing, reflect on it, and revise accordingly. The portfolio takes risks that work.

B

Strong portfolios meet their rhetorical goals in terms of purpose, genre, and writing situation without need for further major revisions of purpose, evidence, audience, or style/ mechanics. The writer is able to reflect on his or her own writing and make some choices about revision. The writer takes risks, although they may not all be successful.

C

Consistent portfolios meet the basic requirements, yet the writing would benefit from further revisions of purpose, evidence, audience, or writing style/mechanics (or some combination) and a stronger understanding of rhetorical decision-making involved in different writing situations and genres. The writer composes across tasks at varying levels of success with some superficial revision. The writer has taken some risks in writing and exhibits some style.

D

Weak portfolios do not fully meet the basic evaluative standards. Most texts are brief and underdeveloped. These texts show a composing process that is not yet elaborated or reflective of rhetorical understanding related to composing in different genres and for a range of writing situations. Texts generally require extensive revisions to purpose, development, audience, and/ or style and mechanics.

F

Unacceptable portfolios exhibit pervasive problems with purpose, development, audience, or style/ mechanics that interfere with meaning and readers' understanding. Unacceptable portfolios are often incomplete. A portfolio will also earn an F if it does not represent the writer's original work.

Participation Grade Descriptors for WRIT 201

A

Superior participation shows initiative and excellence in written and verbal work. The student helps to create more effective discussions and workshops through his/her verbal, electronic, and written contributions. Reading and writing assignments are always completed on time and with attention to detail. In workshop or conferences, suggestions to group members are tactful, thorough, specific, and often provide other student writers with a new perspective or insight.

Strong participation demonstrates active engagement in written and verbal work. The student plays an active role in the classroom but does not always add new insight to the discussion at hand. Reading and writing assignments are always completed on time and with attention to detail. In workshop or conferences, suggestions to group members are tactful, specific, and helpful.

C

Satisfactory participation demonstrates consistent, satisfactory written and verbal work. Overall, the student is prepared for class, completes assigned readings and writings, and contributes to small group workshops and large class discussions. Reading and writing assignments are completed on time. In workshop or conferences, suggestions to group members are tactful and prompt, but could benefit from more attentive reading and/or specific detail when giving comments.

Weak participation demonstrates inconsistent written and verbal work. The student may be late to class, unprepared for class, and may contribute infrequently or unproductively to classroom discussions or small group workshops. Reading and writing assignments are not turned in or are insufficient. In workshops or conferences, suggestions to group members may be missing, disrespectful, or far too brief and general to be of help.

F

Unacceptable participation shows ineffectual written and verbal work. The student may be excessively late to class, regularly unprepared, and not able to contribute to classroom discussions or small group workshops. This student may be disruptive in class. Reading and writing assignments are regularly not turned in or are insufficient. In workshops or conferences, the student has a pattern of missing, being completely unprepared, or being disruptive.
