

State & Local Government Syllabus

PSCI 344 / Fall 2018

T/Th 3:30 p.m. – 4:50 p.m. / Location: LA 337

Professor: Jeffrey Greene

TEXTS

Primary: State and Local Government, 10/e (Ann Bowman and Richard Kearney)

You can also use The Essentials version of this textbook, 6/e. This is a much shorter version of the main text. You can use older editions of the books (the full edition or essentials).

Supplements: The State of The States 4/e (Charles Van Horn; not required)

COURSE DESCRIPTION

State and Local Government is one of the most exciting areas in political science. This course examines the evolution and development that has taken place in the states since the founding period. It focuses on the basic institutions as well as a broad spectrum of public policy issues that affect governing in the states. The theme of this course is built on one primary question: Has there been a resurgence of the states? That is, have states increased their capacity to govern, manage change, and innovate in various areas of public policy?

The primary objective of the course is to acquaint students with the complexities of state government and state politics. Upon successful completion of the course students should acquire considerable knowledge about comparative state government and politics in the states. Assessment is based on students' performance on two exams and a research paper. Additional learning objectives/outcomes are provided at PSCI 344 Learning Objectives (on Moodle).

D	63-66	4 points	1.00
D-	60-62	3 points	.667
F	59 or lower	N/A	0.00

ATTENDANCE: Students are encouraged to attend class. Poor attendance may affect one's final grade.

<http://hs.umt.edu/polsci/>

REQUIREMENTS: There are two exams, which will be given in class. Students are expected to take the exam during the scheduled time. The exam will be subjective (terms and essays). All students will be expected to write a 10 page research paper and/or make a 10-15 minute oral presentation on a topic related to state and local government and provide a written bibliography. Typically, public policy areas are the most popular. All topics must be approved by the instructor. The last weeks of class will be used for presentations. A sign-up sheet will be passed out in class. All papers are due the last day of class prior to exam week. Please note that the option of writing a paper or doing a short presentation is up to each student but you must sign up to do a presentation in lieu of a paper. Students taking PSCI 400 do not have the option of a presentation.

EXAM: There will be two exams. Each exam is comprised of four parts: Part I is terms and concepts (very short answers); Part II is a required essay about federalism in the states (a long essay); Part III provides a choice of a number of short essays (students only have to answer one of these essays); and, Part IV is extra credit items (this section is optional for students).

Political Science 400: Students can take this class as PSCI 400 -- the writing class option. You MUST be a political science major to take PSCI 400. This is a one credit hour class that can be used to fulfill the university writing requirement. It is required for all political science majors. If you opt to sign up for PSCI 400, you must get the approval of the instructor; fill out the appropriate paperwork, then turn the completed paperwork to the department secretary in LA 350 during the first week of class. It is the discretion of the instructor to allow more than 10 PSCI 400 students in any political science class. The requirements to complete PSCI 400 are described below.

All students using PSCI 344 as a writing class must be properly signed up for PSCI 400. Students taking this option are required to write a 10 page research paper on a topic related to state and local government. The topic must be approved by the instructor in advance (before beginning the paper). These papers will be graded more rigorously than for students not taking PSCI 400. Students will be allowed one re-write for their research papers. There is not a universally accepted writing style format to follow; writing styles vary from discipline to discipline. The political science department tends to use Kate Turabian's, A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations. You do not have to use this writer's manual for this class, but you will likely have to use it for other writing classes with other professors in the political science department. Thus, it is advisable to use the Turabian model. All papers are expected to contain a cover sheet, a bibliography, and appropriate citations.

The first draft of the paper is due on Thursday, November 29. The papers will receive two letter grades; one for content (the quality of the research) and separate grade for writing (composure, grammar, writing style, and clarity). The second grade is a technical grade and the standard that will be used is based on the technical writing style of social science research. That is, sentence structure should be clean, clear, and concise. The goal is to write a short, well-crafted, organized paper that is easy to read. After the first draft is graded, the papers will be returned and students will make any corrections and re-submit the paper by the last class of regular classes (*the last day prior to exam week, which is December 7). The papers will be re-graded. The final grade for PSCI 400 will be based solely on the average of the content/writing grade for the final paper. For example, if the final grade on the paper is A/C (92/75), the student will receive a grade of a "B" (the average is 83.5).

State Budget Paper and Information

This paper is posted on Moodle.

For anyone interested in the state budget, this is an annual paper written for the Western Political Science Association about Montana's budget.

Below are two interesting article about New Orleans before and after Hurricane Katrina relevant to federalism.

This article, from City Journal, is an interesting account of New Orleans. It is called "Who is killing New Orleans," by Nicole Gelinas. Go directly to the article at City Journal.
