COURSE DESCRIPTION
In this course, we will survey the field of victimology, which is the study of victims of crime. We will address the extent of victimization in the U.S., considering both violent victimization—such as sexual assault—and property victimization—such as identity theft. We will examine the dominant theoretical explanations for victimization, and we will discuss the causes and consequences of victimization, including the behavioral and psychological reactions to being a victim of crime. We will examine victimization in a wide range of contexts, from intimate relationships to work and school. We will read about a wide range of victims, as well, from children to college students, from the elderly to prison inmates. Finally, we will address emerging issues in the field, including hate crimes, human trafficking, and terrorism.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
• Students will gain a firm understanding of the major issues in victimology.
• Students will read original research in the field.
• Students will develop comprehension skills by identifying key concepts from the readings.
• Students will enhance oral communication skills though active participation in class discussion.
• Students will develop writing skills by (1) writing focused summaries of the assigned readings and (2) writing and revising a paper critically examining issues in the field of victimology.

REQUIRED READINGS

We will also have a wide range of additional readings. These academic articles are intended to expose you to recent criminological research on victimization.

DISABILITY SERVICES
The University of Montana assures equal access to instruction through collaboration between students with disabilities, instructors, and Disability Services for Students. If you have a disability that adversely affects your academic performance, and you have not already registered with Disability Services, please contact Disability Services in Lommasson Center 154 or 406.243.2243. I will work with you and Disability Services to provide an appropriate modification.

DISCRIMINATION AND HARASSMENT
The U.S. Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights enforces Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Title IX protects people from discrimination based on sex in education programs or activities that receive Federal financial assistance. Title IX states that: “No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.” If any employee of UM, including instructors and teaching assistants, learns of any potential gender-based discrimination (e.g., sexual violence, sexual harassment, rape, sexual assault, domestic violence, and/or stalking), they are required to notify the Title IX Coordinator, Jessica Weltman (243-5710, Main Hall Room 006), immediately. Once an incident is reported to Title IX, the student will be contacted by the Title IX Coordinator for follow up. Students can also report directly to the Title IX coordinator in regards to any gender-based discrimination.
Confidential Resource: The Student Advocacy Resource Center (SARC) provides free and confidential support and brief counseling services for students who have experienced gender-based discrimination. SARC is located in Curry Health Center, Room 108, and their number is 243-4429. Students are also welcome to call their 24-hour support line (406) 243-6559. Speaking with a confidential resource does not disqualify students from making a formal report to the Title IX Coordinator if and when they are ready. In the confidential setting, students will be made aware of available resources and reporting options. An advocate is available for all students upon request through SARC.

GRADING

I will not be putting grades on any of your writing. Research suggests that the grading of writing can interfere with the learning process. This class is designed to help you become a better writer and researcher, and I will grade you on your effort and participation in the course. I will provide extensive feedback on your written assignments, but this feedback is not necessarily linked to your grade.

This approach to grading is called contract grading. One of the goals of contract grading is to reduce the anxiety about grades that students often experience. Another goal is to encourage students to develop their own motivations for excellence. It is designed to help you develop a sense of what makes writing effective and I hope that it allows you to put in a lot of work without worrying about your grade. A key aspect of contract grading is to emphasize qualitative evaluative feedback over quantitative assessments of students’ written work.

Grading Contract

You are guaranteed a final grade of a B in the course if you:

1. Meet the stated criteria for all assignments;
2. Meet due dates for all assignments;
3. Attend class regularly, arrive on time, and stay for the duration of the class;
4. Actively participate in all class discussions and exercises;
5. Edit all assignments so that they conform to the conventions of academic English;
6. Make substantive revisions of your work based on feedback;
7. Demonstrate thought and preparation during your class discussion facilitations and presentations.

The grade of B does not derive from my judgment about the quality of your writing, the uniqueness of your ideas, or your enthusiasm for victimology. Instead, you will earn a B in this course entirely on the basis of what you do (not on how well you do it). If you meet the conditions above, you will earn a B in this class. However, your final grade will fall rapidly below a B if you do not meet these conditions. I will let you know via email or in person if you are in danger of falling below a B in the course.

A grade of A in this course does rest on my judgment about the quality of your writing, the uniqueness of your ideas and the depth of your understanding of victimology. To earn an A in the course, you must do everything that you must do to earn a B as well as:

1. Demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of victimology;
2. Produce creative, unique, thoughtful work;
3. Consistently make high quality contributions to class discussion;
4. Turn in papers that are concise, carefully edited, and easy to read.

To earn an A, your performance in all aspects of this class must be exceptionally high quality. I will let you know via email or in person if you are in the running for an A in the course. You are welcome to discuss this grading contract, your performance in the course or your concerns about your final grade with me during my office hours. Grade questions and concerns are always best addressed earlier rather than later.

This grading contract borrows extensively from contracts created by Jake Hansen and Dr. Daisy Rooks.
